To Whom It May Concern:

My name is Drew Rimback and I am the full-time minister to students at First Baptist Church in Dickson, Tennessee where I have served since December 2004. Steve Holladay came and led a parent of teenagers dialogue with our group in January 2007. As a student minister, I am always looking for ways to keep our ministry to parents a priority and provide opportunities that will assist parents as they strive to raise their teen in our world today.

Steve is a gifted communicator and teacher. His enthusiasm and passion for working with people to see them break free from struggles and addictions is evident in his sharing of information. He is a wealth of information and a great resource person. He provided us not only with the information to help navigate teenagers through this awkward time in their lives, but also shared with our group key websites and Christian resources to assist parents down the road. He presented his information in statistical, yet interactive way. This helped as he address some tough issues in regard to teenage sexuality, but at the same time provided a practical approach to connecting with teens.

The information he shared with us in regard to teenage sexuality is a must hear for parents of all walks of life. I have had several parents since he came to thank me and say, "we really needed to hear that." I would say that anyone who works with teenagers on a regular basis and who shares the desire to understand teenagers better and help them make the best decisions the first time around, needs to invite Steve to come share with your group.

If you are in need of addressing the tough issues in regard to teenage sexuality and you desire a Christian approach in doing it, then Steve Holladay is God's man. Steve and I spoke about the needs of our group and what we both hoped to accomplish through this dialogue ahead of time. He is willing to find what will best meet the needs of the group and he is genuine in his approach.

If you have any further questions, or you are considering bringing him to a ministry event and need some insight before hand, please feel free to give me a call at 615.812.9075. Thanks again Steve, for the expertise you were able to share with our group. We are eternally grateful!

In His Grip,

Drew Rimback
